Court of Appeals in Session at Bucyrus

BUCYRUS May 31—The court of appeals sitting in Crawford county this week was engaged today in hearing testimony in the case of the State of Ohio against the Crawford county commissioners a case resulting from the commissioners carrying to the higher court a decision by Judge Wright permanently enjoining them from repairing or improving the McKechen road in Sandusky township a road which is alleged to pass by one residence and is not traveled by a mail route school bus or does not lead to any church or school

At the time the commissioners granted improvement of the road a petition was circulated asking that the commissioners be enjoined from improving the road on the grounds that it was not used by the general public and that the commissioners abused discretion in granting it when there were other roads in the township on which schools and churches were situated which were in need of improvement More than 40 witnesses have been subpenaed for today's hearing in which Attorney Myers represents the plaintiffs or farmers protesting the move and Attorney Schaber is acting counsel for the commissioners

Pair, Really Sisters, on Stage Since They Were Four Years Old

MAKING people glad that's a new occupation for you and it's the aim in life of Polly and Anna the Glad Girls from station WLW in Cincinnati who are appearing in a vaudeville act at the Grand theater tonight and Saturday.

Polly and Anna make up a harmony team of singers and dancers that has been engaged in vaudeville acts since they were four years old touring the United States on the Keith Orpheum and other circuits. The act has been doing the radio since last February when it first appeared at WLW taking the name of the Glad Girls.

The two members of the team were decided hit at their opening performance at the Grand Thursday afternoon. They are sisters and their last name is Stuart.

They Started Club

In relating their experiences Polly and Anna told of the organization of the Glad club that now boasts a membership of over 6,000. The club was organized primarily for children but older persons have been captivated by the spirit of the organization and among its membership cards will be found a large number of grown-ups. [illegible] a member of the club. Its epidemic must have something for which to be glad. Polly and Anna said. Many members of the club are [illegible] are invalids through being crippled. It is performing for these members that the Glad Girls receive the greatest pleasure they said. One college fraternity has taken out a blanket membership for all its members and many ministers, lawyers and other professional men have joined the movement.

Just a Reminder

Asked concerning the effect of the club upon the children the members of the team were very enthusiastic telling of the large number of letters received from mothers all over the United States. Just a reminder that they were not living up to their Glad but pledges the mothers report is all that is necessary in keeping the children happy during the day.

Polly is the funny side of the team. She is the riddle girl who is always wise-cracking about her sister. The team gives a series of talks about animals and birds and is at present preparing to publish a book containing the outstanding songs of the Glad Girls as well as the animal stories.

It is quite difficult the girls stated in keeping their program varied so it never lacks interest. Their repertoire contains over 500 songs.

Polly and Anna are at present on a vaudeville tour and will appear in Logan next week and later in Fort Wayne, Ind. They will be off the air after July 1 when their vacation time starts. During their vacation they will work up new songs for their return to WLW next August.

Tell of Fear Gripping Them at Early Appearances Before "Mike"

Frightened at Radio

Coming from the vaudeville circuits the radio Polly and Anna had a difficult time getting used to the microphone and the stillness of the broadcasting studio. The Glad Girls did not hesitate to admit that they were frightened during their first appearances in the air. There is no applause they said to tell whether the songs and novelty features are a success.

Polly and Anna were born in northern New York state but make their home in Chicago, Ill.

SALARY CASE TO GO TO APPEALS COURT

Action Involving Payments to Joseph Justice To Be Heard June 5

Marion county's appeal of the Joseph Justice salary case will be heard here June 5, before the court of appeals of the second appellate district. The court consits of Judge James I. Allread, Judge Albert H. Kunkle, and Judge Roscoe G. Hornbeck.

The appeal involves the decision handed down in the common pleas. The court consists of Judge James I. a writ of mandamus, requiring County Auditor Earl E. Thomas to pay him a salary of $200 a month. The writ was granted by Judge Hamilton E. Hoge of Harding county common court, sitting here at the request of Judge George B. Scofield.

When Justice was appointed by Judge Scofield Jan. 1, as bailiff of the common pleas court he was allowed a salary of $2,400 a year. At the first of February, however, County Auditor Thomas refused to pay $200 for January due to the fact that the board of county commissioners appropriated only $1,800 for the bailiff's salary. Thomas held that he could pay only one-twelfth of this amount as the monthly salary.

Justice, however, refused to accept $150 and later brought mandamus action against the auditor. After Judge Hoge's decision in the his case Justice has been drawing his monthly salary of $200.

CHANCE TO LIVE FOR COURTHOUSE TREES

Will Be "Fed" and Watered at Regular Intervals: Now Being Trimmed

The courthouse sycamores are to be given a change of diet. For years these trees have been struggling for an existence in the hard packed earth under the courthouse esplanade and Main and Center sts.

But now things are to be made easier for them. They are to be fed and watered at regular intervals. Their diet will consist of bone meal and water.

The trees are estimated to be 85 years old. According to Emmett H. Hodges, local tree expert, they are slowly dying as a result of lack of nourishment. The trees are now being given a thorough trimming and topping by the Buckeye Tree Surgery Co., headed by Hodges.

With the exception of the one tree at the southeast corner of the courthouse the trees have not been topped for 20 years. They have been trimmed about five times in that period, however.

Saturday numerous holes were cut through the stone flagging of the court house esplanade. This was the first step in providing a feeding system for the trees. Before the job is completed the flagging will be taken up and catch basins constructed under each hole. These basins will be filled with coarse crushed stone. Their purpose will be to hold water which will be applied through the holes.

Bone meal fertilizer will be applied about once every two months during the growing season, according to Hodges.

Entrance Is Found to Harz Mountain Cave

SACSHA, Germany—Tradition had long had it that a wonderful cave existed in a gypsum quarry near the Brunswick village of Neuhof, in the Southern Harz, but only last summer was its entrance discovered by accident. It has now been equipped with electric lights and opened to the public.

For thousands of years the slowly seeping water has been building remarkable formations on walls and the floor of the cave, with fantastic pillars and figures. The entrance can be reached by auto over well made roads adding a new attraction to Sascha, the beautiful Harz spa.

Various observatories reported an earthquake, Monday, which continued for five hours. Old Mother Nature must have attempted a record shake-down.

It is apparent that had the senator who gave out the Lenroot roll-call tried, he couldn't have hit upon a better plan for ending secret sessions in the senate.

During the five-year period ended December 31, 1927, the number of telephones installed in the United States was four times the number of births. But then, a telephone in the home doesn't prevent attendance at the movies or the bridge club.

Ruth, Ruby and Robert Reed, triplets, were graduated from the high school of La Grange, Indiana, last week. Regardless of whether or no education pays, the head of that Hoosier family probably has reason to know that it costs.

Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to Washington, says that his letter voicing his readiness to abandon the use of liquor in his embassy was made public through a betrayal of confidence. But why should he worry? He has probably gained the good will of the dry element without the slightest chance of endangering his thirst-quenching liquid supply.

Former Vice President Dawes, as chairman of the finance committee, has launched a drive for $10,000,000 to assure the success of Chicago's world fair in 1933. It will need more than that. To make it a success the people of Chicago will first have to put on a clean-up to assuage the fears of those who are disciples of the "safety first" idea.

It's a bit hard to understand the suffering experienced in Paris Sunday as a result of a temperature of ninety degrees, in the light of all the stories we have heard of the amplitude of the Parisian supply of the stuff we Americans used to drink in the "good old days" to which reference is so frequently made, to keep themselves cool.

Why Not Get Together?

It seems that the conclusion that the various parties concerned had reached agreement regarding the lighting of Center street from Oak to Baker and Main from Mill to Columbia was an erroneous one; that, so far as the lighting of Main street is concerned, the city council, property-owners and the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric company are just about as far apart as ever.

The Electric company—at least the active head of its operations—says that the primary purpose of a street-lighting system is to light the streets. There will be general agreement that such is the first and chief purpose of a street-lighting system. But were that the only purpose, there would not be the present disagreement between the parties at interest. The trouble at present grows out of a difference of opinion regarding which style of standard under discussion would present the better appearance and cause the street to appear to the better advantage. There is agreement regarding the style of the lamps; these in use on west Center street being favored.

Such is this difference regarding the style of the standards that it has been proposed in all seriousness that new legislation be enacted by council that Center street may be improved at once and Main street be permitted to ride. It has also been suggested that the work of reconditioning both streets proceed as originally intended and the matter of the choice of standards be settled later. If this could be done and all the conduits be laid and the necessary cables run, we do not at present see what particular objection there could be to this plan, but if we get the Electric company correctly, it seems unwilling to proceed with the Main street lighting system until the matter at issue is definitely determined and properly legalized. If, however, the latter suggestion means that the pavement should be laid only to be torn up later for the installation of the lighting system, we believe it will be generally held to be a very poor one. That course would appear nothing less than the most utter economic stupidity.

We can not understand why there is need for any other course than that which will provide for the reconditioning and relighting of the two streets with the slightest delay possible with good work. Any and all differences should give away to agreement. All the parties concerned want the two streets improved to the best possible advantage. We believe there is no question of this. We believe that all of them are sincere. There isn't any insurmountable barrier to agreement. The council, the property-owners and the Electric company should get together and iron out any and all differences. We sincerely hope they will. Such would be the sensible way of attaining the very desirable end sought.

The Motor Juggernaut.

While the death toll of other accidents in the United States is steadily decreasing, the increase in fatalities as a result of automobiles is such that the grand total is steadily increasing. Ninety-six thousand persons were killed in accidents in this country in 1928, of whom 27,500 met death in automobile accidents, against a total accident death toll in 1927 of 93,078. The 1928 total was announced last week by the National Safety council. The 1927 total is by the United States census bureau.

The accidental death total of 1928 is 3.1 per cent. higher than that of 1927, due to the fact that the automobile total was 6.2 per cent. in 1928 more than that of 1927. The total death toll of 1928 was sixteen per cent. higher last year than fifteen years previously in 1913, and thirty per cent. higher than in the record low year of the interim—1920. While the accidental deaths from all causes in 1928 were but sixteen per cent. higher than in 1913, the deaths in automobile accidents were five times the number last year they were fifteen years previously.

Of the awful automobile death total of 27,500 last year, 15,950, or fifty-eight per cent., were those of pedestrians. Sixteen per cent. resulted from collisions of motor vehicles; five per cent. from collisions with railroad trains, and three per cent. from collisions with electric cars.

The figures given out by the council, which show the United States ranking much higher in the number of accidental deaths than any other country of importance, demonstrate that the chief six forms of accidents are automobiles, falls, railroad accidents, drowning, burns and street car accidents.

"There were 21,000 fatal home accidents and approximately the same number in industry," the report of the survey states, pointing out that the industrial worker is as safe as the housewife and children.

"Nearly forty per cent. of the home tragedies occurred as the result of falls. There were 5,240 deaths from burns, scalds and explosions; 4,320 from asphyxiation and suffocation, and 1,020 from poison in the home. Infections from cuts and scratches took 150 lives.

"There were 20,500 fatalities in public places, not involving autos, such as drowning, firearms and railroads. Civil aviation had a toll of 388, an increase of 125 per cent. over 1927. Passengers killed outnumbered pilots by forty per cent."

Two of every seven accidental deaths in the United States last year were the result of automobile accidents. Should not such a showing as this make us pause? How long can the country afford to stand such a drain on its citizenship, a drain which is increasing yearly, and due chiefly to carelessness? And this does not take into consideration the injured and the maimed.

And while on the subject, consider the 125 per cent. increase in aviation accidental deaths within the period of a year. What will be the appalling total, when airplanes become as common as motor cars are today?

There's little occasion for alarm over the fact that footwear may go up as the result of the house action in putting hides, leather and shoes on the dutiable list. Ninety-five per cent. of the cost of shoes represents the labor on them rather than the material used.

The cat has emerged from the bag at last. The London correspondent of an American newspaper says the reason that France has not paid for the war supplies bought of us after the war is that Great Britain opposed payment for the reason that payment would be made from the gold France deposited in the Bank of England thus reducing its gold supply by $100,000,000. In business, that would be considered pretty low-down tactics to be employed against a business rival.

In holding that Elme. Rosika Schwimmer, the Hungarian radical and pacificist, is unfit for American citizenship, the supreme court of the United States expressed in a majority decision the view that her admitted lack of nationalistic sense and boasted "uncompromising pacificism" make her "liable to be incapable of that attachment for and devotion to the principles of our constitution that is required of aliens seeking naturalization." It's lucky for some of our native-born Americans that they do not have to stand a test like that.

France has won back the endurance speed record, two French airmen, Weiss and Girier, having flown 3,100 miles at an average speed of 111 miles an hour. It has become so in the world of aviation that a record is hardly verified before it is shattered, so great is the steady development and improvement of aircraft. And it was but a score of years ago that many were prone to believe that the stores of flights by the Wrights were off much the same bolt of goods as April fool tales.

The restraint exercised by the senate rules committee in refraining from penalizing the news association man who refused to give the source of his information on the senate's vote in the Lenroot matter might be taked to indicate that its members have been hearing from the country through the press of the land.

The vital statistics for the first quarter of the present year, which proved the most deadly in England of the present century excepting during the influenza year of 1919, should not be taken to indicate that the vitality of the English is less than our own. That the deaths exceeded those of the corresponding period of last year by 67,975, while births dropped off 7,745, causing a population loss of 11,000, may be attributed very largely to the fact that the English are not prepared in their housings to withstand such weather as they suffered last winter, which, though exceptional there, wouldn't have been considered out of the ordinary over here.

"COMING EVENTS CAST THEIR SHADOWS BEFORE."

Danger in Pleurisy.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A few days ago I talked with a rugged and apparently healthy young woman. She told me she had just recovered from an attack of pleurisy.

This is a disagreeable ailment. It attacks persons of all ages. In itself the disease is not particularly important. Unfortunately, however, there is a disagreeable relationship between pleurisy and tuberculosis.

Not for a moment would I have you think that every case of pleurisy is a symptom of tuberculosis. I do want you to know, however, that no chances must be taken in recovering from an attack.

Too many of us are inclined to sneer at disease. We take it too lightly. During the fever and the uncomfortable symptoms accompanying it, we form all sorts of resolutions. We determine that we are going to do everything necessary to avoid sickness in the future.

But just as soon as we begin to get better our good resolutions are forgotten. In our hurry to get back to business we do not give nature half a chance to complete the recovery.

There are some attacks of pleurisy which, painful as they are, are not particularly serious. A perfectly healthy individual may suffer with symptoms of pleurisy after exposure to wet or cold.

There are the usual signs of trouble. Slight fever and pain in the side. When the doctor listens to the chest he finds friction on breathing. In a favorable case, there is no accumulation of fluid within the chest and the symptoms disappear within a few days.

In another type of pleurisy there is an accumulation of fluid. The word used to describe this is "effusion." The condition is known to the doctors as "pleurisy with effusion."

In every such case we are dealing with an ailment of considerable consequence. An unfriendly germ is present in the system. It is bound to be an uncomfortable neighbor. You need not think you are going to die if you are unfortunate enough to take on a passenger of this description, but certain precautions are absolutely necessary.

I wouldn't speak to you at all about this matter if I did not do it for a specific purpose. I want you to understand that pleurisy should not be neglected. If your doctor tells you you have this ailment and advises you to keep quiet, you should do exactly as he says.

The germs I have mentioned are germs capable of producing pus, or to create other unpleasant complications. They lead to a physical condition which may make you very ill and impair your usefulness for a long time.

You should lead such a life that your powers of resistance are always operating. They are working all the time to guard you against enemies if given half a chance.

Hard work and worry lower the vitality. The burden of having to earn a living and to support a family makes it difficult to escape abuse of the body.

If you have a beautiful vase or some other fragile possession you do not spend all your time worrying for fear it may be broken. But you do take pains to keep the vase under conditions which will insure its safety.

Why don't you do this with your body? Certainly it is more important than any ordinary personal property. Guard it against harm, and if by any chance you do get sick, deal honestly with Nature. Assist her in the process of getting well.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. W. Q—My boy of six is very active, but highly nervous. He was rather delicate up to two years ago, but has since improved. He has bright red rings beneath his eyes which are very noticeable since he is rather pale otherwise. What would you suggest?

A—The child may have intestinal worms.

J. H. C. Q—What is the Fordyce disease?

A—This is a condition marked by the presence of numerous small yellowish white bodies or granules on the inner surfaces of the lips.

Editorial Opinion.

HE'S A GOOD BIRD.

Sentimentality has no place in the make-up of the United States department of agriculture. Neither esthetic nor broadly humanitarian influences govern the issuance of department propaganda. And now that the department is preaching to every one that the European starling is a good bird one may be assured that his quality of goodness is strictly practical, and that it has nothing to do with his intelligence, his morality, his aspect or his generally likable qualities.

The way this hard-headed department establishes the goodness of a bird is to kill some thousands of them and examine with meticulous care the contents of their craws and stomachs. Several starling bulletins have been issued, ranging from doubtfulness at first to complete approval at present. The latest is based upon an examination of the innards of 2,600 starlings slain specially for this scientific research, and establishes the fact that the degustation of innumerable harmful insects more than counterbalances the negligible harm which the starlings may do to certain special agricultural interests.

So the 2,600 have not died in vain. They have given their lives that many more thousands may live and prosper in their adopted land. And, on the whole, one is rather glad. The starling does not belong, but he is such a canny, good-natured, unbelligerent, but self-respecting, bird that he has won the admiration of most bird lovers who feared for a time that he would become a second English sparrow in general pestiferousness. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LAUGHING IS OFFENSIVE.

San Francisco owes it to the rest of a serious-minded civilization to tell just what it was that caused a man to laugh so loud in a San Francisco theater that he was arrested and actually prosecuted. Further, it should inform the world who made the complaint.

The offending theatergoer informed the court that he was a casket-maker by trade, that he required relaxation from his ghoulish task and that the particular act which he saw was so funny that he could not restrain himself. It couldn't have been a gag about the casket trade, for, if it had been, he would have probably rushed from the theater and registered a protest that the industry was being libeled. It couldn't have been one about the iceman, for the Amalgamated Association of Ice Producers would not stand for such a thing. It may be that one of the old time mother-in-law jokes was inadvertently used. It is really puzzling. What industry, clique, society, nationality, or what not is there left that has not made protest at being made the butt of theatrical jokes?

Though the incident proves the high quality of the mirth-producing efforts of San Francisco players, mirth that would make a casket-maker laugh, the man should have known better. He deserved to be prosecuted. He is emotionally overbalanced and has not learned to control his reactions. He should contemplate on the fact that this is a serious age, that collectively and individually we wish to be considered a people not to be taken lightly, nor at any time are we to be made fun of. Those who wish to laugh should go into the depths of a forest or up on the heights of a mountain. An American theater is no place to laugh out loud.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

COOLIDGE BREVITY.

In his public addresses as well as in his state papers, President Coolidge gained a reputation for brevity while he was in the White House. In his forthcoming autobiography he runs true to form. As the editor of Cosmopolitan puts it, "he has told in less than 45,000 words not only the complete story of his life, but the complete story of our country during the dramatic years of his generation." "In these days of long-winded autobiographies and biographies," the editor adds, properly, "that's a real achievement."

The former president also shows his capacity for hard work in completing his autobiography. In the forty days between his visit of March 20 to New York and April 29, when the announcement was made, Mr. Coolidge wrote five installments of his autobiography of some 5,000 words each. In something like three months, including the last month and a half of his term in office, he not only completed his autobiography, but wrote other articles which have since appeared in magazines. His achievements in this field, both with respect to his capacity for work and for brevity, are worthy the emulation of some of the so-called professional writers. Brevity can be something else besides the soul of wit, and mere verbosity is too often only the sign of a shallow brain.—Ohio State Journal.

Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord: And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers, lest I come and smite the earth with a curse. —Malachi 4:5, 6.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, May 31—Thoughts while strolling: Whatever became of the hot salt bag for earache? Women who wash coats in gasoline and traipse around smelling like a Ford. Starched white collars coming back. One cafe heralds cole slaw, another cold slaw. Whatever they call it, it's just slaw.

Dudley Field Malone, a New York boy, who made good in his home town. A woman setting a mosaic design in a sidewalk. Wallace Thurman, a negro with a hit play on Broadway and a successful novel to his credit. Wonder if girls in small towns also smoke while driving a car.

Jane Grant, who is Mrs. Harold Ross. And a Lucy Stoner. The West Indian doorman, who braids his hair around his head like a Chinaman. Oscar O. Oscar is an expressman. And there's John Charles Thomas, a singer. The ornate dressing-gowns you see only in Broadway windows. Self-conscious stage folk. And so few notice them!

The hurdy-gurdy driver with a white cockatoo on his shoulder. Bareheaded attention attractors. Cops who do not think they earn their money unless they bawl out taxpayers. Reading racks with electric lights for bathtubs. I prefer to sing.

Spanish-looking ladies with dark eyes and soiled necks. A chalet, chez and maison cafe in a single block on Fifty-Second street. And look out for your embarrassment when the waiter speaks French! Secluded tea rooms where the woman goes alone. And the man sneaks up shortly in a taxi.

Phillip Hoyt who acts as police commissioner when Mr. Whalen goes away. And looks like a Lyendecker collar ad model. Miriam Hopkins. And Shaw and Lee who are always wondering whose hands are whose on the stage. A modern drug store advertises: "Free almanacs." And another drug store decorated by Urban.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., idling in front of a window of wrist watches. That shoe store with niches for busts of the most popular favorites in four branches of the theater—Ethel Barrymore, Marilyn Miller, Mary Pickford and Rosa Ponselle. Who said so? And ten gets you twenty they are not by a jugful.

The newest hotel in the Plaza fountain zone will shortly stand as a monument to Pierre, the restaurant man. It is to occupy the site of the Gerry home on the avenue at Sixty-First street and will shoot up forty-one stories. A feature will be the breakfast room on the forty-first floor without a pillar in the room and commanding a marvelous view of the city. The small foyer will be oval shaped with no room for the cigaret wrist tappers or other lobby impedimenta. Pierre is Pierre Casalasco, who came from that part of Corsica that gave Napoleon to the world. He began as a chasseur in the Casino at Monte Carlo and received training in Ritz hotels in London, Paris and New York. He expects eventually to retire to a chalet on the Corniche road overlooking the blue of the Mediterranean.

Man Flying.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Do you believe that a man will ever be able to fly with a machine that uses his own power for motive, or do you believe that Da Vinci was all wrong about flying"—Fulvio De Fazi, Detroit."

I am not forgetful of the fact that a very great American mathematician affirmed on the basis of physical laws that mechanical flight, even with a motor, could not be a success, although almost at that very moment the Wright brothers were making a success of it. Nevertheless, I do not believe that man will ever fly with a machine whose motive power is furnished only by his own body, or muscular force. Such force can do no more than act in the manner of a pull upon a trigger releasing some far greater force to do the work of flying.

But that, of course, is in substance just what is done by the motors which we now employ. If you could contrive a machine with wings of some sort to be put in motion by pedalling, say, like the wheels of a bicycle, and if you could sit in the machine and pedal it with your feet, or your arms, and thus cause it to lift itself together with you into the air and to sail along there like a bird, then you would achieve the same triumph over my skepticism that the Wright brothers achieved over the skepticism of the mathematical physicist above mentioned. You would also be realizing, though perhaps not precisely in the form imagined by him, the dream of man-flight that haunted the brain of that great artist-engineer, Leonardo da Vinci. Da Vinci never was able to make a machine that could fly by human power alone; all ages before him men had at times dreamed of such a thing, but nobody succeeded; and since his time it is only within about a quarter of a century that the growth of applied science has solved the problem of mechanical flight, not by any impossible multiplication of man's muscular force, but by calling in through more ingenious applications of laws of force already known, powers that become the servants of man's will.

It would not, in my opinion, be a solution of the problem of mechanical flight by man power to cause a gliding machine to progress through the air, unless the progress was sufficiently rapid to supply the upward force necessary to sustain the machine with a load in the air against the force of gravity. I do not regard the proceedings of the gliders who manage to take advantage of hill slopes, and ekints of air, and puffs of wind or what not, as examples of flight by man-power. It is in part riding down hill in the air, and in part skillful sailing by coaxing the winds and aerial currents. But by his own power alone man can not launch himself up into the air and maintain himself there.

I would by no means belittle the experiments in gliding, however, for they have thrown much light upon the condition of the atmosphere, and revealed unexpected facts and peculiarities that are of use in all forms of aerial navigation. Gliding was, indeed, the father of heavier-than-air aeronautics, and it is still capable of contributing a great deal of knowledge as well as of skill to the aeronaut. It is easy to see, also, that this kind of air riding as an outdoor sport for individuals might attain a certain degree of deserved popularity. It might serve for the infants' bench in the school of the air.

Animated life below the human level has to submit to the unswerving operation of nature's mechanical laws. But to man has been given the faculty of achieving indirectly what, directly applied, his forces are insufficient to accomplish. So, in a sense that seems fanciful yet justifies itself by results, man though unable to fly by muscular power contrives to do it by brain power.—Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

An old proverb says that the chief fault of man is that he has so many small failings. We are pretty free and eager to forgive our own small failings. We don't realize that each little weakness helps to build a large weakness in character. A certain bad habit may be trivial, but enough trivial bad habits break down the "ensemble." And so the old proverb maker, who declared that man's chief fault was his small failings, probably knew what he was talking about.

One reads that thirty miles above Montreal on the St. Lawrence river a power canal is to be built from which will be developed 500,000 horsepower of electrical energy. A great industrial area will be served. Just another instance of the market for power. The power companies of the United States are among the most far-reaching and powerful corporations in the world. They are interested not only in the marketing of light and power, but they are interested in what people say and think. They are interested in the channels of publicity. To control the channels of publicity is to control almost everything. Not strange that a great power company seeks to buy newspapers.

John Olst had a thrilling time in the swift current of the Niagara river when his boat was upset. A little later Olst was drowned in his bath tub, after being partially overcome by gas from a defective heater. As Bobby Leach, who went over Niagara Falls in a barrel, had an accident when he slipped on an orange peel in Australia.

Isn't it like that with a lot of people who have large abilities to do large things, but are overcome because they can't get the best of a small weakness?

Men motorists in a strange country rarely inquire about the road if they can get it without it. Ask their wives if this isn't so. They care nothing for the old proverb which says "better ask than go astray." Men seem to go to know less than everything in the presence of their wives. Men love, in the middle of the family circle, to keep up the illusion of omnipotence. They know everything and are all-powerful. What some of them do not know is that their wives are little impressed, are probably laughing at them.

"Why don't you ask that man over there?" says the wife of the motorist, "Oh, I know the way. I know all these roads," says the motorist.

Poor little men, playing at being smart.

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

JANE DOUGLAS FOX has written a charming and unusually appealing story around the lives of sisters in her novel Rain Before Seven which had its fourth printing before May. One presumes she has chosen this unusual title for her book because there really are tears shed but they are such wholesome tears, shed for such real honest-to-goodness reasons. The story is beautifully written and fascinates one to a point of not wanting to lay the book down until the last chapter is completed.

The reader becomes an old friend of the family and joins with them in their meager suppers of bread and jam, feels moved to commend the elder sister for her bravery and loyalty, buy a new story book for the youngest, send another to college and oppose the second oldest sister who is of course the most beautiful.

Beauty for the beautiful is Jennet's idea of life and when after the supposed death of the father the family at Storm House is plunged into poverty she rebels at the life which the others take so philosophically and rejoice in having each other to share it with. Hurling a book through a window at Shawn Rand who works in a lawyer's office by day and writes stories and plays by night she brings the young man to her house and figuratively speaking to her feet. Her next move is to go to England without letting any of the family know, hoping to capture the wealthy Christoph r Varick whom she had met two years previous while sojourning in Paris with her aunt.

After failing in this and short of funds Jennet is taken in tow by Laura Hazlit an American living abroad who is attracted by her beauty and also captivated by her subtle flattery. She accompanied Laura to Switzerland but the friendship is broken when Jennet is a most blatant manner captures the attentions of Minot Wells an elderly man with a voice like Christopher's and who later proves he has a mind of his own. Always a disturbing element where ever she goes Jennet returns home only to create sorrow and tears. One bids her good by as she rides away in the taxi with her husband believing one at last knows the answers to her questions of why hadn't Christopher stayed with her? What had made Shawn turn from her? What had Katharine ever done that she should have her heart's desire?

Katherine who becomes the head of the household and is he one to whom every one in the family turn for a solution of every problem has her own troubles and almost wrecks her life by marrying an artist who seems dependent on her for encouragement in his work. Her work in the library is lightened only, by the fact that when hours are over Shawn Rand will be waiting to help close the door and they will walk home discussing his plays and work.

Jean helps in a kindergarten and loathes the work but her burden is lightened because of the fact it keeps little Ellen in shoes and books and adds a bit to the family coffers. Little Ellen who adores pirates and a mongrel dog which she has cajoled Jerre into taking from the family next door before they sent it to the dog pound and Miss Abbie a spinster whose life was spent in sewing are other interesting characters in the story.

New Poems by Emily Dickinson

THE one hundred and seventy four poems of Emily Dickinson recently discovered by her niece and biographer Martha Dickinson Bianchi are hailed as a literary sensation without recent parallel. They are published in Further Poems of Emily Dickinson.

For many years these newly-discovered poems had lain undisturbed at Amherst Mass. and when The Complete Poems of Emily Dickinson edited by Mme. Bianchi was published in 1924 it was believed to contain all of her work. Finally Mme Bianchi her curiosity aroused by persistent vague rumors about a store of unused poems by her great aunt determined to make a thorough search. She was rewarded by finding the marvelous treasure trove which will permanently enrich American literature. They had been withheld from publication by Lavinia Emily's sister evidently because of their intimate nature.

IN Picturesque Old France Herbert B Turner has caught the spirit of France with his camera and with the descriptions which he combines with his extraordinary photography. The book is written for those who delight to rove through the byways rather than over the main tourist path. His out-of-the-way wanderings have led him through Normandy and Burgundy to the mountainous sections of France there to the fantastic rock towns and restful bathing ports of the Mediterranean. Through the Roman and medieval centers he goes to the Massif Central a land where prehistoric man has left many records. Through history he takes his way to the sea at LaRochelle and on to joyous Brittany and always he has with him his camera.

Rapp-Wrap Wax Food Wrapper is such a heavy fine quality that it should not be confused with what is generally termed "wax paper" (the thin tissue grade) as that quality paper is wholly unfit for the many uses suggested below:

USES OF RAPP-WRAP WAX PAPER—Because of its quality we recommend (without reservation) its use as follows

IN THE KITCHEN

FOR wrapping all moist food products such as cheese, cold cuts of meat, lettuce, radishes, celery, cakes, etc. For wrapping "smelly" foods like fish, onions or garlic flavored foods, sandwiches, etc., to prevent contaminating other foods in the ice chest.

For covering raw surfaces of marshmallows, watermelons, grapefruit, etc., to prevent them drying out.

Used under the cover to insure sealing of Steamed Puddings or breads.

For rolling or kneading dough. Wrapping Roasts or Fish during baking or Cut Cabbage to prevent drying.

We recommend thoroughly WRAPPING "left over" foods before placing into refrigerator to prevent refrigerator odors and to KEEP SAUCERS AND DISHES OUT OF THE FOOD CHAMBER. Merely a covering food on a saucer or dish will not fully cover it as a rule.

For lining pie and cake tins to avoid the necessity of buttering them.

Wrap candy on a sheet of Rapp-Wrap to cool. When cool cut candy into squares and wrap in it.

For hard boiled and deviled eggs, and cold picnic lunches generally. (A roll of Rapp-Wrap should be taken to the picnic so that "left over" foods may be wrapped for the return trip).

For tie under jelly glass, horseradish, mustard and other jar lids.

For everything and anything in the food line to keep it wholesome and sanitary until used.

Rapp-Wrap is especially useful on the FARM where milk crocks, milk buckets, butter and dairy products are handled. These items of food are particularly susceptible to spoilage and contamination.

IN THE DINING ROOM

For use under the server's and baby's plates to keep the table cloth spotless. For wrapping silver to keep from tarnishing. For wrapping foods left from the meal before placing into refrigerator.

IN THE LIVING ROOM OR PARLOR

Cover highly polished table surfaces (under scarf) before putting lamp vases and other heavy articles on them. The wax used in Rapp-Wrap will keep these surfaces "waxed" and free from cracking.

IN THE BEDROOM

Rapp-Wrap is especially useful for discarding infants wear. Handkerchiefs used by sick persons or those having colds should be well wrapped to prevent spreading of disease. Other uses will suggest themselves here.

IN THE BATHROOM

Wrap toilet accessories, especially soap wash cloth, shaving brush, etc. when traveling. Smooth a curling iron by simply clamping a piece of Rapp-Wrap after the iron is hot.

IN THE LAUNDRY

An electric iron or mangle, when warm, will take the wax off of Rapp-Wrap and keep the ironing surfaces in perfect condition.

MISCELLANEOUS

Wrap thoroughly all tools and fine instruments to prevent rusting. Cut flowers when sprinkled with water and properly wrapped with Rapp-Wrap will remain fresh for many hours. A piece of Rapp-Wrap on the bottom of birds cage will keep it clean. Many other general uses will suggest themselves to you for this wonderful product.

IMPORTANT—To keep Baby's bottle nipples, and cooked cereals sanitary and away from dust and flies—we recommend wrapping fully after use and placing into refrigerator. Women generally do not understand the use of a product such as Rapp-Wrap, therefore we suggest if you like it that you recommend it to your friends and neighbors. Better still use it for Showers, Christmas and Birthday Gifts. Bridge Five Hundred and Bunco parties, Church Bazaars and Women's Clubs can make good use of Rapp-Wrap for prize and money making purposes.

Convenience of Wall Cabinet

Complete for mounting Cabinet are shown on label of roll. Cabinet should be fastened to a wooden surface in a convenient place. TACKS FOR INSTALLING ARE FURNISHED—do not use to ask for them. They are especially designed to prevent starting woodwork.

The above illustration shows cabinet mounted ready for use. It may be mounted on top of refrigerator lying flat if preferred.

Simply withdraw desired length from roll. Tear UP AGAINST corner edge, leaving balance of roll in the Sanitary Cabinet, away from dust and dirt.

Ordinary sheet wax paper soon becomes discouraged in the dresser compartment from dust and germs and seems constantly taken—Moreover the Cabinet complete system has what is wanted from a convenience roll which means ECONOMY.

No Money Needed—Just Clip Coupon and Present at any of the Following Dealers:

Skin Spots and Stains Instantly Removed

A progressive chemist recently discovered a sure way of quickly removing ink spots, cigaret and other stains and discolorations from the skin. Sprinkle a little Peroxine powder on a hot, wet cloth and rub gently until the spots disappear. The same procedure will clear the face of blackheads, oily, shiny skin and unsightly blemishes. Peroxine dissolves them away like magic. Get a small quantity of Peroxine at your drug store, and always keep it on hand for such emergencies.—Adv.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Men Never Change

MY Daughter, be not deceived by false prophets. For the damsel of today is not as her mother, unsophisticated. But the man of today is even as his father, and his father's father, exceeding wise in business, but naively simple in love.

I charge thee, let thy garments be modern and the "last word" in smartness. But OLD thy psychology as vintage wine, and thy technique even as Eve's and Helen's and Cleopatra's well-seasoned.

Behold, the Simple Damsel saith: "The men of 1929 are not to be won by the wiles and coquetry of 1830. For they have known many women. And all our subtilities are as window glass, easy to see through! Therefore, only with frankness and good camaraderie can they be persuaded."

But the Wise Virgin baiteth her are the same today, yesterday and forever. And though they have parted from their mustaches and from their adenoids, their vanity is still WITH them. And a little flattery winneth where much frankness faileth. Yea, a dull compliment is more potent than a brilliant epigram.

The Simple Damsel saith: "Lo, I will not stoop to 'play' the fish, but will do the Good Little Pal. And men shall love me for mine understanding and admire me for mine intelligence. They shall delight in my wise cracks, and call me 'good sport.'"

But the Wise Virgin baiteth her hook with words of honey, and with chiffons and curls and perfumes and tender glances. For she desireth to be NO man's Little Brother!

The Simple Damsel weareth the boyish manner and the sport clothes and the mannish haircut. She giveth the hearty hand-shake and cultivateth the snappy slang. She telleth the spicy story. She is shoulder-to-shoulder and man-to-man.

But the Wise Virgin featureth her FEMININITY. She weareth the alluring slipper and subtile frock. She cooeth in a voice of silver, and her laughter is pianissimo. She getteth into the imagination.

The Simple Damsel scorneth to dissemble her emotions. She floateth in frankness and rejoiceth in confessions. And when a man pleaseth her fancy, she goeth AFTER him without hesitation.

him a RUN for his money!

Verily, verily, it is only in novels and in women's imaginations that men have learned to accept women as a PAL. But in real life they still prefer mystery to honesty, incense to common sense, and coquetry to camaraderie. And a "good little pal" is just a "spare" somewhere in the back of a man's consciousness—SELAH.

FORGET WAR

German Veterans March In Memorial Parade at Chicago

CHICAGO, May 31—Chicagoans who witnessed the striking Memorial day parade here, went back to work today convinced that the hatreds of the late World war are forgotten.

The impressive feature of the colorful parade was the presence in the lineup of a contingent of German war veterans, who have since taken up residence in the United States.

They were garbed in their war uniforms, with iron crosses and other emblems of the vanquished imperial regime. Marching side by side with organizations of the allied armies, they were well received by the thousands who watched the parade.

"I read an ad in the newspaper and I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will recommend this medicine to any woman who is in bad shape like I was. I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. Another Great Mystery Story

FOLLOWING THE ADVENTURESOME "GRAY PHANTOM"

BY HERMAN LANDON

TWENTY FIVE

He reached forward arms outstretched A trembling form came to his arms and nestled there sighing between sobs and laughter

Oh Phantom Man I m so glad' she whispered and then she was silent while being content to feel the strength of his arms and hear his caressing words I knew you would come Phantom Man You have never failed Phantom Man But when the door closed I couldn t know who it was and was frightened I switched on the light and tried to hide forgetting there was no place to hide in the house Phantom Man' I don t know whether I want to laugh or cry' she sobbed a little of each as his hand smoothed her face playing with the soft curls and fragrant coils of hair

We must have light she said after a while I want to see if it is really you

She stepped out of his arms and in a few moments with a faint click a light appeared She turned and stood before him her large brown eyes wide in

Oh the gaspel I thought——'

He laughed reassuringly just then resuming the slightly borrowed role Yes really I he told her though I have convinced certain people that I am Philip Dawson amateur criminologist You don t seem to like my disguise

I like you best when you are yourself she said gravely You look entirely too dignified the way you are now I am a little bit afraid of you But I understand An uneasy look dimmed her smiling eyes The Gray Phantom is a hunted man'

As if that mattered he laughed lightly and stood looking at her with a loving expression Her eyes were misty and shining A tinge of color was already creeping up beneath the pallor of her face

She was in a simple blue dress with a gray sash embellished with a small rosette of paler gray

I doesn t she answered 'See' indicating the gray sash and the gray rosette I am still wearing the Gray Phantom s colors I shall always wear them no matter what happens I was unjust to you the last time I saw you Phantom Man I felt as if a part of my life had been torn out of me Everything has become clear since then I understand now why you took the course you did Can you forgive me

Nothing to forgive he murmured softly I am only blaming myself I tried to compromise between good and bad and I got out of my depth No serious harm was done though except— His face tinged grave Have you found any trace of your father The brightness died out of her eyes

Yes but I lost it again In the night after I left you and Wade I saw a man in a restaurant across the street who answered the description of Whipple After a little he drove off in a big yellow car and I followed him in my runabout

That was reckless he said reprovingly Will you never learn to think before you leap

You are not setting a very good example for me she countered with a wan smile and then she went on to relate how she had followed Whipple *and how dire trouble her ad*venture had terminated Whipple took me to the place where father was being kept I don t think it is very far from here His intention was to show me the arrangement he had devised and impress on me how futile it would be for any one to try to interfere with him in any way

Yes I know all about that diabolical contraption Vanardy muttered grimly Whipple told me He might have been lying but I couldn t take chances

He intended that I should go back and tell you what I had seen Helen went on Of course he relied on the fact that I had no idea where the place was and would never be able to find it again or direct any one to it I saw an old boat with the name Tuckaway camp painted across the bow Whipple didn t dare let me go back after that

It was an old boathouse wasn t it asked Vanardy quickly

It seemed to be Father was kept in a little room upstairs I was allowed to see him only for a moment or two

Vanardy nodded I know the place I was there last night The upstairs room gave me the impression that it had been recently vacated

They didn t think it safe to keep father there any longer I was given to understand that they had removed him to another place, but I haven t the faintest idea where it is. For that matter I don t know where this place is I was brought here blindfolded

You are in the main building of Tuckaway Camp Yes I know it sounds queer he added as her eyes widened in astonishment but it is a fact

I should think it would be rather risky to hide a person in a place like this but doubtless the scoundrels know what they are doing Wasn William here just a few minutes before I came in

The tall, stupid looking fellow' I don t know his name but he has been here several times asking me the strangest lot of questions She tossed her head in a determined way He might have saved himself the trouble

How have they treated you'

'Very well but it has been rather lonesome and I have been fearfully worried about father

Vanardy took her hand and pressed it Don t worry he said gently Well find him

He spoke with a confidence that made her smile I am sure you will Phantom Man You have never failed yet in anything you have set out to do She looked at him whimsically her eyes softening And after you have found him what then

I hope to wring the necks of Whipple and his confederates

And after that

He thought for a moment averting his gaze as he left soft brown eyes full upon him There s Sea Glimpse' he murmured I must go back to my gardens there and do penance a while longer for my past mistakes And I must not forget the little gray orchid In a short time if my cross breeding system succeeds it will be full blown Don t forget you have promised to wear it next to your heart

She smiled wistfully He had often told her about his efforts to produce a gray orchid For many months it had been a diversion from more serious work When the hybrid was finally evolved it was to be a living symbol of whatever had been good in the Gray Phantom

I shall Phantom Man she told him Next to my heart'

The Disappearing Captive

For a little longer the whimsical smile lingered on his lips then he awoke with a start to the present

We must not stay here any longer he said taking her arm and leading her to the door I am going to take you back to New York immediately I ll have Wade detail three of our most reliable men to keep a watch over your house night and day and see that nothing happens to you

Dear me' she exclaimed You talk as if I were a string of pearls that had to be guarded

You are ' he murmured in her ear The most wonderful jewel in all the world You are——

The words ended in a half stifled exclamation He had just opened the door leading into the little hall in which he had left William with hands and feet bound He stopped abruptly and swept the narrow space with an astonished glance

William was gone

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TODAY was Friday but all days are alike I wouldn t of knowed it was Friday only my aut dropped a glass and broke it and she said Oh it s Friday meaning that because Friday is an unlucky day she was not to blame for breaking the glass

When I had let Jubilee down and had go into my britches and went down and milked the cows I put our barn shovel out of the hole in the barn into the alley so that I could get it without having to go through our yard and maybe get caught and made to mind Annabelle Lee Then I went in and fed my face and my mother said I am being a very good boy this vacation and I haven t got into any fights and haven t endangered my life or anything Then my father said to her did she realize that this was only the fifth day of vacation and that I had the whole summer ahead of me yet and she said she was sure I was going to be careful My father said he was sure I wasn t He said that if I was careful I would be the first boy that ever was So I got my hat and skun out so that they wouldn t make me stay home where I was safe

We had our swim and then the bunch went for their shovels and we all hiked out for Sand mountain as tight as we could go We went around the other side away from the packing house to do our digging and we took turns and dug all day, and it is nice yellow sand and dug easy so that we got clear in to the middle of the mountain and then we got the barrel and pushed it all the way in and then they all went out because it was cow time, all but me and Jubilee—we went into the barrel and set down and turned around and it was like looking through a long tunnel, and we were just going to start crawling out when everything got dark and the sand had caved in

I couldn t see my hands before my face, or anything else, and I felt of Jubilee and he was all right and wagged his tail and licked my hand. And I thought I was buried and that maybe people would put flowers on my grave next Decoration day, and I was glad I had always been a good boy, and then I got hungry, and then Jubilee whined and I cried a little because there wasn t anyone there to see. Then I went to sleep, and then I heard Jubilee bark and I heard voices and I got pulled out of there.

The whole town was there. There was a searchlight turned on the side of the mountain where them kids had been digging, and the sand, which

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

Junior s Defense of His Mother Threatens to Arouse Dicky s Wrath

DICKY S taunt—for it was nothing less—would have been hard enough to bear if I had been alone and nothing had been involved save his jealous resentment over my work for Philip Vertrees which was to take me to the city for the winter But that he should have permitted his rancor to spoil my last hour with Junior before leaving home—that brought me to my feet in a quivering fury which took all my will power to control

You—you—are unjust' I stammered unable to quiet all reproach but stifling the bitter retort which I would not utter before Junior

Oh of course Dicky mocked I realize that fully also that you are a most ethereal martyr whose heart is torn between her duty and her love for her cheerful Sorry I intruded upon the touching farewell and the moral lecture

He swept off his cap and bent from the waist in a bow which held even more of mockery than did his words But I had caught hold of myself by the time he had finished his little tirade and I turned quietly away from him and recreated myself with my boy

But the next instant my small son was no longer beside me He had flung himself after the retreating figure of his father and seized his arm with both hands while his voice rose in impassioned angry protest

My mother isn t what you called her he shrieked evidently under the impression that ethereal martyr was some epithet calling for bloodshed upon the part of the lady s sworn knight Several months before after an orgy of medieval story telling he begged me to give him the accolade of knighthood with his wooden sword and also had begged for a piece of ribbon from one of my gowns to wear in his cap I had played the combination role of sovereign and sweet heart with tears behind my smiles for the adoration which I realized lay beneath the little chap s play and it was with a fierce joy in his championship that I heard his arraignment of his father though I knew that later I must take him to task for his rudeness and send him to Dicky with an apology

For always my husband and I have kept one unspoken pact Never has either of us, in the absence of the other belittled each other s authority or uttered a criticism of our work In duty Dicky s justice also, I told myself although I found the admission difficult so angry was I the occasions of his flying out at me before Junior were rare With Jill Hannaways still echoing in my ears I wondered if the jealousy of my work with Philip Vertrees which I knew prompted his outburst might not have its roots—as she had said —in——

I pulled myself up short No, not yet was I *willing to consider that possi*bility even in my remotest thought processes But when did a woman fail to find a certain softening thrill in the conjecture that her husband s anger is prompted by jealousy?

Junior s high pitched voice was sweeping on perilously near to tears now

She s the best mother in the whole world he shouted and you shan t make her feel bad by calling her names just when she s going away

Dicky permitted his son to pull him around so that he faced me At the look upon his face my muscles tensed in terror then relaxed as the heroic anger vanished as quickly as it had come But I knew that in that momentary wrath he had been very near to physical chastisement of his small son for the little lad s championship of me and I abhorred at the knowledge that such a scene would have indelibly branded its bitterness upon all three of us

But there was rancor mingled with infinite weariness in his voice as he finally answered the boy

You do not understand Junior I have not called your mother names But you are a good boy to stand up for her Always do that You might remember however that I am going away too tomorrow morning

He loosened the boy s hands and strode quickly away Junior stood looking after him for a second his fists clenched his head bowing Then he threw himself face downward upon the grass and vented his anguished perplexity in a loud wail such as he had not used for many months

Oh dear'' he cried 'Why can't I have my father and mother together, and all of us loving each other lots as we used to do'

I half rose from my seat to rush to him but saw Dicky slacken his stride irresolutely, and I sank down again Did he mean to come back?

SERVICES AT CEMETERY

Many Organizations of City Take Part in Annual Parade

Marion once more honored the memory of its war dead with Memorial day services yesterday afternoon at the Marion cemetery following the annual parade Col F W Glover of Ft Hayes, Columbus in the main address of the exercises at the cemetery stressed the need of a strong national defense Colonel Glover said that there is nothing wrong with our national defense policies rather we are just taking precautionary measures to maintain in all its details the liberty that was handed down to us by the men whose honor we are here today to honor

Colonel Glover a grandson of a Confederate soldier used himself as an example to show the unity of our nation

Grandson of Confederate

Talking of our nation he said It is but another proof of the unity of this nation, that I the grandson of a Confederate soldier should be honored by an invitation to come here and take part in the program of this sacred occasion in one of the principal cities of Ohio a state which poured out its blood and treasure in support of the Union cause and whose troops were in the van of every great battle of the civil war

In concluding his speech on the need of a strong national defense Colonel Glover said It should be clear to us all that since provision for the common defense has preserved for us the government guaranteed by the constitution no more solemn duty devolves on the citizen than to wholeheartedly

The killing occurred in the palatial Snyder home in East Cleveland and the maid confessed following her arrest according to police The slayer had quarreled with Mrs Snyder over her wages after Snyder left for his downtown office this morning according to the story The maid declares according to police that Mrs Snyder seized a kitchen knife and attempted to attack her that she wrested the knife from the older woman and stabbed her twice in the breast. The maid was unmarried

After the slaying Miss Seenan telephoned East Cleveland police saying there has been trouble When police arrived they were met by the maid who took them to the kitchen where Mrs Snyder's body lay on the floor telling the officers simply

"I killed her

Attorney Snyder told detectives the maid had been in ill temper since yesterday afternoon when she demanded the afternoon off

Police said there was a small knife in Mrs Snyder's hand and that the large butcher knife with which she was killed lay beside the body

Mrs Snyder before her marriage in 1921 was Miss Dorothy Marsh daughter of Mr and Mrs Luther S Dicker of Chicago

Snyder has gained public attention in the last few months as one of the chief legal opponents of the Van Sweringen railroad interests He was in court fighting a land case against the Van Sweringens when he was notified of his wife's death

47 ATTEND BANQUET GIVEN FOR SENIORS

Annual St. Mary's High School Event Held in Harding Ballroom

One of the most colorful events given in honor of the class of '29 of St. Mary's High school, was the junior-senior banquet given Wednesday night at 6:45 o'clock in the ballroom of Hotel Harding. Dune and Royal blue, the class colors, were used as the predominate colors in the attractive decorations of the room. Covers were placed for 47, including the guests, the Rev. Herbert McDevitt, assistant pastor of St. Mary's, the Rev. John Kelly, of LaRue, the Rev. Robert Van Kaenal, of Cincinnati, Mrs. George Kelly and Mrs. Gains Rush.

Following the banquet, Charles Fye, as toastmaster opened the program. The address of welcome was delivered by Joseph Von Kaenal, with a response by Donald Brown, president of the graduating class. Toasts were given by Miss Isabel Neyhart, vice president of the class of 1930 and Miss Margaret Drake, vice president of the class of 1929. Responses to the toasts were given by the Rev. Father Robert Van Kaenal, an alumnus of St. Mary's and the Rev. Father Herbert McDevitt, concluding the program.

A grand march on the mezzanine of the hotel opened a program of dancing. Music was furnished by Louis S. Myers, of the Henry Ackerman Co. During the intermission a one-act play, "The Cast Rehearses," was presented by five Junior girls. Their roles were: "Phyllis," Isabelle Cheney; "Flora Mae," Mary Moran; "Violet Van Elsnere," Valeska Rush; "Evelyn," Betty Burke; "Julie," Dorothea Murphy. The time of the play was 9 o'clock, in the sitting room of Phyllis' home. Dancing continued until 11 o'clock.

Class Day, June 10, will be the next event of importance to the St. Mary's seniors.

STUNT DAY PROGRAM AT HARDING HIGH

Seniors Entertain Juniors and Sophomores at Annual Event

For the last time in their school year the Harding High seniors were allowed to dress up and "be themselves" at the annual stunt day exercises held in the East and West Hall of the school this morning. The program consisted of everything ranging from Cinderella to a burlesque on the senior play. The program was given before the juniors last and opened with a Marionette show. The students taking part in this stunt stood behind a canvas screen. Dances and several popular songs were given.

After this performance a burlesque on the senior dinner followed in which the students were dressed in overalls and gingham dresses.

Following the senior breakfast a burlesque on the senior play was presented. The play had the same plot as the senior play. "The Queen's Husband," but the names were changed and the costumes used by the students were the direct opposites of those used in the play. "Cinderella" was presented by another group of students and was also a burlesque on the old story of Cinderella and the Prince. The program was then presented in East Hall before the sophomores in the same order.

the Baldwin government would resign immediately, or remain in office and face the meeting of parliament on July 2.

In view of the king's illness, it was said Premier Baldwin may carry on the government's affairs temporarily.

Chamberlin Returned

Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary for foreign affairs, who represented Great Britain at all the recent disarmament conferences at Geneva, was returned to his parliamentary seat by the narrow margin of 43 votes. The victory was so small that a recount was demanded by his opponent, O. G. Willey, labor.

However, honor in the Chamberlain family was upheld by Neville Chamberlain, Sir Austen's brother, minister of health in the conservative government, who was returned with a majority of almost 15,000 — the largest scored by any Tory candidate.

Women Are Factor

It is estimated that approximately 80 per cent of the 28,800,000 eligible voters went to the polls yesterday. The recent enfranchisement of all women over the age of 21 was a factor in the heavy balloting.

It still is too early to determine just what influence the female vote exerted at the polls, but in view of the fact eligible women outnumbered men by more than a million and a half, it may safely be assumed that the "flapper" ballot had much to do with the many sensational changes chalked up thus far.

Of the women candidates elected, Lady Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, polled the smallest majority, according to present indications.

support the agencies of common defense created by our congress."

If we fail to do this, we endanger all that inspired the heroic dead of our past wars, and are no more worthy to be called sons of American fathers, he said.

Conduct Short Program

Preceding Colonel Glover's address a short program was carried out at the cemetery. Introductory talks were given by Col. George B. Christian, president of day, and Col. T. E. Andrews, vice president of the day.

An overture was played by the massed bands and the invocation was offered by the Rev. John A. Carriker, pastor of the Forest Lawn Presbyterian church.

Commissioners Believe State Should Bear All Expense on Own Roads

one-fourth by the county. The position taken by the local commissioners is that the county will be unable to aid in any such program unless additional revenue is provided from some source.

Umpher stated before the Rotary club that the average cost of grade eliminations throughout the state was $85,000. The commissioners point out that amount would go only a short way in eliminating any of the four crossings over state highways here.

Higher Here, They Say

Cecil R. Leavens, county surveyor, some time ago made a rough estimate of the cost of eliminating the Hocking Valley crossing on the Marion-Prospect rd. He estimated that this one project would cost $200,000. This crossing is considered typical of the three other crossings, the Pennsylvania on the Prospect rd. and the Bucyrus rd. and the Erie near Five Points on the Columbus-Sandusky rd.

Leavens points out that crossing watchman could be maintained day and night at $200 a month at these crossings for about two per cent of the cost of elimination.

The topography of the county tends to make the cost of eliminations higher here, county officials point out. At none of the crossings on state highways would there be any advantage derived from natural elevations. Since the highway and railroad beds are on the same level in all cases it would be necessary to construct long artificial approaches to bridge the steam lines or tunnel under them. In many cases in the state there is sufficient difference in the elevation of the highway and railroad line to greatly reduce the problem of eliminating the crossing, officials say.

PUBLIC HEARING ON TARIFF BILL SOUGHT

La Follette Sponsors Resolution but Is Opposed by Administration Leaders

WASHINGTON May 31—An effort for public hearings on the tariff bill for the first time in history today threatened to project a lively battle in the senate even before the measure is formally considered.

Senator LaFollette Republican of Wisconsin sponsored the resolution directing the senate finance committee to hold public hearings on the tariff measure which the house enacted last week. His proposal met with prompt opposition from administration leaders but LaFollette predicted it would be approved by a combination of Democrats and Republicans.

Administration leaders, worried about their program for recessing congress from early June until September, looked upon LaFollette's move as another attempt to embarrass them.

They asserted the tariff hearings already had been conducted behind locked doors, although the entire mass of witnesses always had been made public afterwards.

Of course we will oppose LaFollette's resolution announced Senator Smoot Republican of Utah chairman. Never in the history of tariff legislation have the hearings been public. The testimony always has been printed after but the discussion by senators always has been confidential. I see no need to abandon the practice which has ruled the drafting of a tariff bill since the early days of the republic.

JURY TO RULE TODAY ON "CONTRIBUTIONS"

West Jefferson Dog Race Case Heard in Madison County Court

LONDON May 31—A jury today to decide whether the contribution system of betting is legal at dog races in Ohio.

This will be the direct result of the jury trial of two officials and two employes of the West Jefferson Kennel club who are charged with permitting gambling and operating gambling devices at the dog races sponsored by them at West Jefferson.

Those who went on trial in probate court here today are H. M. Foster manager of the track O. P. Van Schoick secretary Ned Speakmaker cashier and Tom Kinnaird ticket seller the latter two employes at the track.

The trial is what is called a 'test case.' The contribution system of betting it is explained consists of making a donation to the track and then if the donation was placed for the winning dog a refund is made. This at one time was declared legal in Ohio.

It was reported that the men if convicted by the jury will carry the case to the higher courts.

Foster declares he has invested $66,000 in the West Jefferson track. The people there he claims do not oppose the races but are strongly in favor of them inasmuch as the tax that goes to the city greatly relieves a somewhat depleted treasury there.

Prosecutor Dean Richmond will uphold the state's end of the case and H. H. Crabbe and T. W. Johnson are the defense attorneys.

ERIE ROUNDHOUSE, behind some excellent hurling by Richards, again dominated the play of the Industrial loop when it took its third straight win, defeating the strong Osgood nine Wednesday by a score of 4 to 1. Both teams made two errors but the pitchers were stingy with hingles, the losers getting five and the winners one less.

League backers are looking for the Roundhouse nine to be among those present when it is time to hand out championships.

With Bob Gamble taking his fifth victory of the year and his third for them, Fairfield kept pace with the Erie nine by defeating Huber 10 to 5. Six runs in the fourth won this game.

Something is bound to happen when the league co-leaders meet on June 13 at Garfield park.

Shovel Club took its first win of the season at the expense of the fast-slipping C., D. & M. nine. The score was 10 to 3 with the Electrics getting all their runs in the first inning. However the winners got off to a good start by getting seven tallies in the initial frame. Zuspan was fairly effective after his bad start.

Erie Yardmen hopped into a tie for third place by walloping the Hocking Valley outfit, 16 to 1. Shoemaker, Erie moundsman, held the losers to three hits and got the same number himself. The winners hammered Trimmer for 16 safe hits.

U. S. TENNIS TEAM NEAR TITLE ZONE

One Victory Needed Over Cuba To Assure Trip to Europe

DETROIT, May 31—The United States Davis cup team needed only a victory in the doubles over Cuba today to assure it of the championship of the American zone and a trip to Europe to meet the winner of that zone for the right to challenge France, present champion.

John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., were to settle the issue today when they take the court here against Ricardo Morales, captain of the Cuban team, and his partner, Herman Upmann.

Only the biggest upset will prevent the United States from qualifying for the right to meet the winner of the European zone, judging from yesterdays' two easy victories. John Hennessey, of Indianapolis, disposed of Morales, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4, and Van Ryn took the measure of Vollmer, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1.

CUBS HOLD THIRD PLACE AS INVASION GETS UNDER WAY

American League Teams Go to Coast for Series of Games

THE eastern teams in the National league are speeding westward today for their first trip of the season around the inland section of the loop, while the west's representatives in the American league are coming east for the first time this year. Detroit invades Philadelphia today and the Phillies clash with the Pirates, with the other intersectional meetings beginning Saturday.

The shift in the schedule finds the Cubs in third place in the National league, one game behind the league-leading Pirates, with the Cardinals sandwiched in between them. John McGraw has pulled his Giants up to the .500 mark, five games behind Pittsburgh. Whether they are to give the three leaders a battle for the pennant will be determined on their present invasion of the west.

The apparently unstoppable Athletics, who have lost only nine games all season, lead the second-place Browns by 4½ games. Miller Huggins is getting desperate over the slump of his Yankees, who trail the Mackmen by 7½ games, and there are portents of a wholesale shakeup in the New York lineup similar to the 1925 house cleaning. He benched outfielders Meusel and Combs in favor of Paschal and Byrd for part of yesterday's double-header with Washington.

Pennock was beaten again in the opener, 5 to 3, and the rejuvenated Nats trimmed the champions for the third straight game in the nightcap, 4 to 3, with a three-run rally in the ninth.

With Grove and Quinn pitching, the Athletics coasted to two easy wins over the Red Sox, 9 to 2 and 9 to 3.

The Detroit sluggers swamped the Browns, 14 to 6, but lost the afternoon game 13 to 9. Fifty-two hits were made during the two slugfests, Alexander getting two homers and four singles.

Cleveland finally scored some runs for Hudlin and he beat Lyons, White Sox pitcher who hurled 21 innings last week, by a 6-to-5 score. Red Faber won the nightcap for the Sox, 3 to 2.

In the National league the Pirates and Cubs battled to a Mexican stand-off, the Cubs winning in the morning, 5 to 1, breaking Pittsburgh's eight-game winning streak, and the Bucs retaliating in the afternoon with a 4-to-0 victory.

The Cardinals jumped to second place, passing the Cubs, by two-timing the Reds, 5 to 1 and 8 to 2. Alexander and Haines easily subdued the Cincinnati batters.

The Giants downed Brooklyn twice, 8 to 7 and 15 to 6, in two free-hitting contests, the Robin dropping to seventh place. Frederick, Brooklyn outfielder, got seven hits including two homers.

After checking the Phillies' winning streak with an 8-to-7 win in the morning, the Braves dropped the second game, 11-to-5. Chuck Klein hit his tenth and eleventh homers, tying Ott and Gehrig in the home run race.

The home run total for the 16 big league games was 21.

"Bud" Cram Sets National Endurance Record for Bicycles; Rides 25½ Hours

Recognition Sought by Y-Indus Club, Sponsors of Event

ALL existing national records for endurance bicycle riding were shattered by Donald "Bud" Cram," 19-year-old Marion boy, ended a 25-hour, 32-minute period of continuous riding at 6:32 o'clock last night. Cram's feat eclipsed the former national record of 24 hours, 15 minutes by one hour and 17 minutes. This mark was held by Richard Smith, of Washington, D. C. Cram's new marks also are state and county records. His old state mark was 18 hours and 21 minutes set at Carey last year.

Cram's course was mostly on Vernon Heights blvd., although he took eight trips up town and back during the night to vary the monotony of the ride. Harold Carroll acted as Cram's manager and was in charge of all arrangements for the ride.

CRAM

CRAM started on his ride at 5 p. m., Wednesday and did not stop riding until two minutes past 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was paced by members of the Marion Y-Indus club, sponsor of the marathon, during the night and most of the following day.

Cram's ride covered 163.5 miles or practically the distance from Marion to Detroit. Just a nice little jaunt on any man's bicycle.

Kenton, who hails from Chesterville, sent his dog to victory in the final line race as well as the championship event.

More than 50 dogs were entered in the chase witnessed by 500 persons.

In the second final race, a dog owned by E. Spohn of Pemberville won first place.

Marion Athlete Rides 163.5 Miles; Averages Six Miles an Hour

final few hours was a battle against old Sol, the temperature ranging around the 90 degree mark from early morning on.

MEMBERS of the Y-Indus club, of which Cram is a charter member, said today that an immediate attempt will be made to get official recognition of the feat. This is not expected to be difficult as several of the city's leading citizens were officials at the ride and checked him at various intervals.

R. T. Lewis, prominent realtor, acted as official timer and clocked Cram as he started and finished. He was assisted by several club members during the night period of the ride. Walter Moore, president of the club, served as official recorder for the marathon.

ACCORDING to the speedometer which Cram had attached to his bike he maintained a steady pace of about six and a half miles an hour all during the ride. The recordings, which were made at four different stages of the ride follow: start, 5 p. m. Wednesday, 20.2 miles; 12 o'clock midnight, 70.5 miles; 2 a. m., 81.6 miles; finish, 189.7 miles, which minus the 26.2 miles on the bicycle at the start makes the distance of 163.5 miles.

A testimonial dinner for Cram is being planned by the Y-Indus club for sometime next week at which time moving pictures taken during the ride by Adam Bauer, local photographer, will be shown.

Members of the club backing Cram are Walter Moore, William Fetter, Albert Slack, William Stair, Robert Lindsay, Donald Cram, Robert Elliott, Duane Church, Charles Osterholt, Chalmer Cline, Weddell Kerr and Harold Carroll.

When a man says goodby over the telephone before you are through, you may as well hang up.

CHESTERVILLE DOG WINS COON CHASE

Second Final Event at Fairgrounds Won by Spohn's Hound

Bennie Kenton's coon dog today holds the grand championship of the Shady Side field trials as a result of its victory in one of the two finals held yesterday at the fairgrounds here.

Kenton, who hails from Chesterville, sent his dog to victory in the final line race as well as the championship event.

More than 50 dogs were entered in the chase witnessed by 500 persons.

In the second final race, a dog owned by E. Spohn of Pemberville won first place.

RAY KEECH WINS INDIANAPOLIS RACE; LOU MYER SECOND

Victor Averages 97.6 Miles an Hour; Billy Spence Killed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31—Ray Keech was the magic name that echoed over the automotive world today. He is the plucky young daredevil whom dame fortune smiled upon yesterday with victory in the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway classic.

Keech, driving a Simplex special, ground out the distance in five hours, seven minutes and 25 seconds at an average speed of 97.585 miles an hour.

Lou Meyer, piloting a Miller Special, ad winner of last year's race, finished second. Jimmy Gleason, in a Duesenberg special, came in third.

And thus, while fortune favored these and other drivers in the famous Hoosier Memorial day classic, Billy Spence, a Los Angeles youth, was singled out as a human sacrifice to appease the gods of chance.

Spence was killed when his Duesenberg special overturned on "dead curve" in the early minutes of the race. His lightning-bolt chariot was seen to hurtle into the air, turn completely over and come to a stop against the brick retaining wall on the south curve.

A crowd variously estimated from 140,000 to 170,000—the largest in the history of the event—witnessed the accident.

Cash prizes totaling $100,000 were distributed among the surviving racers. The first 10 to finish received purses ranging from $20,000 down. Keech, the winner, was said to have received approximately $45,000. In addition to the grand prize, he won many lap prizes and was awarded several sums put up by accessory manufacturers.

While treating a patient a New Jersey physician discovered a method for disclosing invisible finger prints on human skin and making permanent prints of them.

If I Were A Man

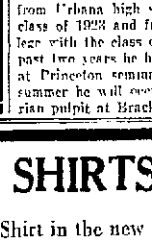
I WOULDN'T be a kill-joy.

Nobody loves a wet blanket. I wouldn't derive pleasure from taking the kick out of life for others. If the girl friend planned a picnic for next day, I wouldn't inform her, with much gusto, that the paper predicted rain.

If she described in glowing terms the fine points of her new car, I wouldn't inquire casually: 'Have you seen, the new Squeegee? It's the best car on the market today.' And if she announced with great enthusiasm that she was going to take up aviation, I wouldn't call her attention to the number of accidents during the last few months.



Throwing cold water on a girl's pet interests is no way to make a hit.

The man who's forever pointing out drawbacks and offering objections whose most used word is "but" and whose favorable pastime is puncturing toy balloons, is not the one a girl is going to pick to be a little ray of sun-shine in the home.

If I Were A Girl

I WOULDN'T be bored.

I'd try to pretend a little enthusiasm about life, even if I didn't feel it. I'd try to look interested in what the boy friend was telling me, instead of gazing at him blankly with a vacuous stare and stifling a yawn.

When he took me out to the movies or the theater, I'd show a little animation, instead of acting as if I were weary and disillusioned and had experienced everything and exhausted every sensation. I'd be interested in things and in people and in ideas instead of sinking back in a comfortable chair and yawning. "Who cares?"

I'd keep my mind active and my face expressive. The bored pose may intrigue a man a few times, but it doesn't take him long to get fed up on it.

It's only in fiction that the disillusioned woman of the world grabs off all the boy friends. In real life that pose doesn't go. It's the girl, who can make a man feel that he's telling her the most thrilling things she's ever heard, who is never at a loss to find a boy friend.

RUSH NEW MONEY TO ALL PARTS OF U. S.

Shipments of New Currency to Federal Reserve Banks Under Way

WASHINGTON May 31— Thousands of pounds of 'almighty dollars are being rushed out of Washington on virtually every mail train to all parts of the country in the gigantic job of replacement of about 600,000,000 pieces of paper currency with the new abbreviated type

Every available place of storage at the bureau of engraving and printing is filled with cases twos fives and tens in the process of getting enough to be put in circulation

Shipments of the new currency to the federal reserve banks has been in progress several days From the reserve institutions the crisp bills which are about one third smaller than the present style will be distributed to the banks and then to the public

Issues of the present size currency has stopped and consequently the country is using the most down at the heel paper in years The treasury anticipated that the old currency would hold together until July when the new will go on the market but admitted that it would be a struggle

By Sept 1 officials believe that most of the denominations up to $20 bills would be replaced with the smaller currency, excepting national bank notes the printing of which has not yet been started

University Degree to Pastor, Father of Five

BOSTON—A splendid example of perseverance for education will be set forth here this June when five children of the Rev. Anderson Brown, pastor of the Somerset Mass. Federated church who began his career as a self taught spiritual adviser to a Kentucky Mountaineer flock will see their daily receive his Bachelor of Sacred Theology degree at Boston University's commencement exercises.

Not allowed to leave his common ary because the mountaineers believed that when God called a man to preach he must go immediately and not waste his time in useless study. Eventually however he was able to enter Indiana University graduating in 1911.

Following seven years of wanderings and preaching through Arizona and the Far West Brown entered Ohio Wesleyan and following his second graduation turned eastward to Boston University for his third degree.

Today's Review of Grain Market

CHICAGO May 31—Wheat prices suffered a severe break yesterday at Winnipeg and Liverpool in a wave of liquidation and bearish sentiment Domestic grain exchanges were all closed in observance of Memorial Day and Argentine markets were also closed

A decline of 2 1 8@2 3 1d at Liverpool further heavy rains in Canada and a weak cash demand demoralized the Winnipeg market and prices there opened sharply lower and declined steadily to a close which recorded net losses of 1 1 16@1 5 8c for the day Holders of long wheat jumped it into a market in which the demand came only from holders of bids and shorts covering for profit

Sentiment Bearish

Wheat had few friends after the opening this morning said the Winnipeg grain letter received by Logan & Bryan at the close yesterday Prices started to slip from the start after a quite weak opening and the market soon run into stop loss orders and general liquidation of long lines Liverpool opened weak and closed 2 1-8@2 3 4 lower

This was discouraging to holders and the weather map showed conditions very favorable in both Winter and Spring wheat country There were heavy rains in most parts of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and the weather in the south was mild and for the most part dry Reports indicate that the Winter wheat crop is making good progress and harvest has already started in the extreme south

There were reports of fairly large export sales of North American wheat on the break Wednesday including Manitobas durums and hard Winters, and a late dispatch from New York today stated that about 1 000 000 bu has been worked on the break but this had no effect on the market The only support in evidence was in the buying of scalpers of bids or from short covering

Market Demoralized

The wheat market is in a demoralized condition and though consumption is heavy large carryover stocks seem inevitable Rallies on oversold conditions are to be expected but the general opinion of the trade is that lower prices must be expected

There was a quite active trade in oats and barley at Winnipeg yesterday but there was little doing in rye Prices were lower in sympathy with wheat

In addition to the general bearishness toward all grains and the sharp break in wheat prices which will naturally had a sympathetic action in corn news of the domestic corn situation available yesterday was only in regard to weather conditions over the belt These were bearish inasmuch as the local warm weather continued and while there were rains they were mainly in the form of local showers.
